Read the following passage and answer the questions given below.

[25]

- 1 So Jake spread his arms, leaped skyward from the sidewalk, and began to fly, rocketing up over the neighbourhood. Suddenly he heard the distant voice of his father calling, as if from another universe, and Jake pried open sleep-heavy eyes . . .
- 2 "Get up, pal," said Jake's father, "or you'll miss the school bus." "Just let me sleep a little longer," Jake mumbled. Then he groaned and turned over, pulling the covers up over his head like a tent, as if to somehow recapture his dream. Jake loved to sleep. It wasn't that he was lazy or lacked energy. Jake was a normal fourteen-year-old kid in every way. But he loved to curl up under a soft white cloud of sheets, rest his head on a marshmallow pillow, and luxuriate in the twilight world of slumber where life is exciting and dreams always come true.
- 3 So Jake was sitting at a table at Chez Maurice's in Hollywood, having lunch with his buddy, Tom Cruise. Tom was offering Jake a role in his next movie when . . .
- 4 "Get up," said Jake's father, gently shaking his son's shoulders. Jake yawned and hauled his legs over the side of the mattress, where he sat for a few moments to reconcile himself with the shocking reality of upright existence. He dragged himself into the shower, where he briefly dreamed of tropical rain forests, and at last shuffled downstairs to breakfast.
- 5 "Jake's going to sleep his life away!" teased Taylor, his nine-year-old sister, as she sat at the table, kicking her dangling legs excitedly as if to show by comparison how wide awake she was.
- 6 "He's just a growing boy," said Jake's father, washing dishes at the kitchen sink. "Right?" Jake nodded sleepily and finished his breakfast. He trudged out the front door with Taylor, still half-sleepwalking, and they waited on the curb for their school bus, as usual.
- 7 At school, finally fully awake, Jake cycled through the pleasant routine of another typical day. He greeted his buddy Benjamin at the locker they shared. They discussed hockey games and books. Then there was science with Mr. Albert, Math with Ms. Freed, and lunch with Benjamin, who always told great jokes. After school, there was homework, dinner with his dad and Taylor, maybe a little TV, and then off to dreamland. And so went week after week, and month after month.
- 8 So Jake swung the bat, sending the ball out of Dodger Stadium and into the Baseball Hall of Fame . . .
- 9 "Come on, get up," giggled Taylor, holding a ringing alarm clock only inches from her brother's face. "You'll be late for school!" Jake shook his head in disbelief and ducked under the covers.

Moments later Jake awakened to an empty, quiet room. He noted with puzzlement that all the buttons on his shirt top had popped off in the night. Then he pulled himself from bed and padded sleepily to the shower. The bathroom mirror reflected a face that was oddly unfamiliar—one with heavier eyebrows and new creases in its brow. Jake rubbed a hand over his face and felt the unexpected sandpaper abrasion of whiskers. Mystified and dazed, he staggered downstairs to the kitchen, where he was shocked to discover a teenaged Taylor sitting at the breakfast table beside his father, who was greyer and heavier.

10 “So you finally woke up,” commented Jake’s father, casually sipping his coffee. “We thought you’d sleep forever.” “You certainly overslept!” added Taylor in a surprisingly mature voice. Jake shook his head as if to disperse the fog of dreams. “What are you talking about?” “You’ve been asleep for four years,” Jake’s father replied calmly. “Better get dressed, or you’ll be late for your last day of school.” This statement set Jake’s mind reeling. His last day of school? Had he really slept so long? Was he now eighteen years old? Lost in a whirl of confusion, Jake went to his room to dress for school and discovered that none of his clothes fit him. He borrowed a shirt, pants, and shoes from his father—and they made him look and feel even older.

11 Taylor led zombie-like Jake out the front door to the curb. Boarding his bus, Jake stared in bewilderment at the aged faces of his friends. “Hey, it’s Jake!” shouted someone from the back of the bus. “He’s back!” One by one, his schoolmates began to recognize him. “Buddy, you sure look older!” said someone sitting near where Jake stood. Jake looked down to discover his friend Benjamin smiling heartily and looking startlingly like his older brother. Jake sat beside Benjamin, who eagerly told what had happened during Jake’s years of slumber—how Mr. Albert had retired from teaching science, and how Ms. Freed had married. Benjamin spoke excitedly of hockey games won and lost; of books read and remembered; of school plays, classes, pep rallies, and car washes. They were small, ordinary events, but to Jake they seemed extraordinary because they had happened without him. He had missed grades nine through twelve. And now there would be no more school days with Benjamin, his teachers, or his other friends. Jake had slept them all away.

12 “Come on, buddy, get up,” called Jake’s father. Jake pried open leaden eyelids to see his father standing at the foot of his bed, looking younger and leaner. Beside him was a nine-year-old Taylor, seemingly more girlish and bubbly than ever before. “Come on, sleepyhead!” she giggled. Her laughter seemed as bright as the yellow sunshine splashing about the room. “You don’t want to miss school, do you?” Jake beamed and looked at his family. “No, I wouldn’t want to do that,” he said as he threw back the covers and leaped out of bed.

1. The train had started punctually. Passepartout rode in the same carriage with his master, and a third passenger occupied a seat opposite to them, was Sir Francis Cromarty, one of Mr. Fogg's whist partners on the Mongolia, now on his way to join his corps at Benares.
2. Sir Francis was a tall, fair man of fifty, who had greatly distinguished himself in the last Sepoy revolt. He made India his home. He was almost as familiar as a native with the customs, history, and character of India and its people. But Phileas Fogg, took no pains to inquire into these subjects; he was at this moment calculating in his mind the number of hours spent since his departure from London.
3. Sir Francis Cromarty observed the oddity of his travelling companion and questioned himself whether a human heart really beat beneath this cold exterior, and whether Phileas Fogg had any sense of the beauties of nature. The brigadier-general was free to mentally confess that, of all the eccentric persons he had ever met, none was comparable to this product of the exact sciences.
4. Phileas Fogg had not concealed from Sir Francis his intention of going round the world, nor did the circumstances under which he set out; and the general only saw the bet as a useless eccentricity and a lack of common sense.
5. At half-past twelve the train stopped at Burhampoor where Passepartout was able to purchase some Indian slippers, ornamented with false pearls. The travellers made a hasty breakfast and started off their journey again.
6. Passepartout was now plunged into absorbing reverie. Up to his arrival at Bombay, he had entertained hopes that their journey would end there; but, now that they were plainly whirling across India at full speed, a sudden change had come over the spirit of his dreams. His old vagabond nature returned to him; the fantastic ideas of his youth once more took possession of him. He came to regard his master's project as intended in good earnest, believed in the reality of the bet, and therefore in the tour of the world and the necessity of making it without fail within the designated period.
7. The train stopped, at eight o'clock, some fifteen miles beyond Rothal. The conductor, passing along the carriages, shouted, "Passengers must leave the train here!"
8. "Mr. Fogg, this delay is a disadvantage to you!" exclaimed Sir Francis.
"No, Sir Francis; it was foreseen," replied Fogg.
"What! You knew that the way—"
"Not at all; but I knew that some obstacle or other would sooner or later arise on my route. Nothing, therefore, is lost. I have two days, which I have already gained, to sacrifice. A steamer leaves Calcutta for Hong Kong at noon, on the 25th. This is the 22nd, and we shall reach Calcutta in time."
9. There was nothing to say to so confident a response. The greater part of the travellers were aware of this interruption, and, leaving the train, they began to engage means of transport for themselves.
"Monsieur, I think I have found a means of conveyance," said Passepartout

"An elephant! An elephant that belongs to an Indian who lives but a hundred steps from here."

"Let's go and see the elephant," replied Mr. Fogg.

10. Mr. Fogg resolved to hire him, but his owner refused point-blank. Mr. Fogg persisted, offering the excessive sum of ten pounds an hour for the loan of the beast to Allahabad. Refused. Twenty pounds? Refused by mahout again. He was, perhaps thinking to make a great bargain, still refused.
11. Sir Francis took Mr. Fogg aside, and begged him to reflect before he went any further; to which that gentleman replied that he was not in the habit of acting rashly, that a bet of twenty thousand pounds was at stake, that the elephant was absolutely necessary to him, and that he would secure him if he had to pay twenty times his value. Returning to the Indian, whose small, sharp eyes, glistening with avarice, betrayed that with him it was only a question of how great a price he could obtain. Mr. Fogg offered first twelve hundred, then fifteen hundred, eighteen hundred, two thousand pounds. At two thousand pounds the Indian surrendered.
12. Phileas Fogg paid the Indian with some banknotes which he extracted from the famous carpet-bag. Then he offered to carry Sir Francis to Allahabad, which the brigadier gratefully accepted. At nine o'clock they set out from the village through the dense forest of palms by the shortest cut.

Q.3 Answer the following questions: [25]

i. What was the purpose of Phileas Fogg's journey? (Paragraphs 4 and 11) [1]

ii. Give two reasons why Phileas Fogg was determined to hire the elephant at any cost? (Paragraph 11) [2]

iii. Explain why was the owner of the elephant constantly refusing Phileas Fogg's offers? (Paragraphs 10 and 11) [2]

vii. Find words from the passage that have the following meanings

- a. holding great respect: _____ (Paragraph 2)
- b. the quality of being strange or peculiar: _____ (Paragraph 3)
- c. to move rapidly round: _____ (Paragraph 6)
- d. anticipated: _____ (Paragraph 8)
- e. greed: _____ (Paragraph 11)

viii. Change the sentences into indirect narration.

[/5]

- a. "I think I have found a means of conveyance," said Passepartout.

- b. "Mr. Fogg, this delay is a disadvantage to you." said Sir Francis.

- c. "Let's go and see the elephant," replied Mr. Fogg.

- d. The conductor, passing along the carriages, shouted, "Passengers must leave the train here!"
